EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

TO-DAY is 13 hours and 56 minutes long.

EMPEROR Frederick, of Germany, still lives.

The grain of weakness brings ruin to the mass of strength; the drop of folly spoils the cup of wisdom.

REPORTS from Washington say that the "tall Sycamore of the Wabash" looks withered at the top since it was struck by Kansas lightning.

Kindness has converted more sinners than either zeal, eloquence or learning; and these three never converted any one unless they were kind also.

Consult with him that is wise and of sound judgment, and seek to be instructed by one better than thyself, rather than to follow thine own invention.

SENATOR VOORHEES committed a breach of decorum in introducing the methods of the blackguard into the Senate Chamber, and is in disgrace until he apologizes.

SENATOR INGALLS was burned in effigy at Lebanon, Tenn., on Friday. Quite a compliment to Senator Ingalls. A man is known by the enemies he has as well as by his friends.

JAMES G. BLAINE and Melville W. Fuller, the new Chief Justice, were newspaper reporters together in the Maine Legislature once on a time, which accounts for it all.

THE Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican National Convention is said to stand thus: Non-committal, 27; for Blaine, 19; against Blaine, 5; Cameron, 4; Fitler, 2; Allison, 1, and Sherman, 1.

THE special telegram which appeared in the Philadelphia Times of Saturday stating that Blaine will accept the Presidential nomination may be classed among the sensations for which that paper is notorious.

ON May 23 the Democrats of this State will hold their convention and go through the motions of setting up a candidate to be bowled down by the luxuriant Republican majority that blooms in Pennsylvania.

THE Signal Service reports that owing to cold Minnesota, Dakota and Nebraska have suspended seeding. Evidently the Northwest has 'em again. About the Fourth of July it will likely get its spring onions planted.

A BARN belonging to William Thomas of Stumptown, a hamlet near Osceola, Clearfield county, was totally destroyed by fire Monday afternoon. A lot of straw, a calf and turkey went up in the flames. Cause of fire unknown.

MR. HARRY MILLER, clerk of the First National bank of Huntingdon, while working about a tree on Thursday afternoon, a twig entered his right eye, barely missing the sight and burying itself in the flesh to the depth of three-fourths of an inch.

SENATOR VOORHEES has not appeared in the Senate for several days, and there are reports in circulation that he is suffering from rheumatism and boils, and that he has gone to Indiana to nurse himself. He is having more than his share of misfortune lately; but probably it will teach him a valuable lesson of prudence for the future, which seems to be the thing he was most in need of.

THE opposition to Mr. Blaine is coming to recognize the handwriting on the wall and is growing desperate. Hence the circulation of the report that he has consented to have his friends begin a canvass for his nomination. Mr. Blaine has not withdrawn his letter of declination and the people have not withdrawn their refusal to accept it. That is just now matters stand.

THE Democrats can be held responsible for the present strike at the Nail Works and elsewhere throughout the country. To the policy instituted and carried out by them is due to the present low price of iron and the consequent enforced reduction of wages. It is only what was predicted when they grasped the reins of power through a solid South and manipulation of the returns in New York State.

DEMOCRATIC PRETENSIONS.

It is stange what imagination can do, not only for individuals but also for collections of individuals. Sometimes one imagines, when reading democratic papers, that the Democratic party really believes itself to be right and is convinced that there is some defense for the destructive policy it is pursuing.

It is a party which may once have been all right, but of late years it has taken the wrong side of evey public question where it has taken sides at all. Whether or not members of the Democratic party engaged on the side of the Union in the war, it is certain that the doctrines held then and held now by the Democratic party brought on the war. Its entire history since then may be illustrated by its attitude now.

On the subject of temperance it is afraid to take a position for or against. While we do, not as individuals, entirely agree with the Republican party in its enactment of a high license measure, we do most earnestly praise it for its boldness, in the state, in showing its colors on this question and also in expressing itself ready to enact absolute prohibition should the majority desire such legislation. We know just where to find the Republican party on this question—adhering to the cardinal doctrine of the greatest good to the greatest number.

The great national question of Protection has heretofore been evaded in a cowardly manner by Democrats. The Republicans have endeavored to make it a vital question, but the Democrats preferred to cry "fraud." They have been placed in a position to find out whether there was any fraud and have either found none or are conniving in what existed. They are like the boy who cried, "Wolf! Wolf!" when there was no such animal near. But the wolf is coming and will find them next November without a protector.

Thanks to their own President, they have been placed in a position which compels them to make Protection a vital issue. He has had either the courage of his convictions, or else has blundered. We believe it was a blunder. Their platform this year must reaffirm the doctrines of their President or else they must acknowledge that their four years of power were a failure.

They will do the former and the issue will be paramount. Already the effects are felt in stagnated industries. No one wishes for a revival of trade more then ourselves, but we have no belief that there will be such a revival until Republicans are restored to power. Blaine, in his beliefs, is a perfect personification of the doctrines which will keep this country in healthful prosperity. We want the tariff restored to what it was before 1883. Every article manufactured in this country must be protected by tariff If this is done the quality of the articles will improve and it will find a market even outside this country.

It is folly to suppose that we can compete with other countries without our workmen being reduced to a level with workmen of such countries. If so-called statesmen persist in preaching the pernicious doctrine of free trade let every American workman arise in the majesty of his power and vote against any reduction.

There is a great deal of prating about lower tariff affecting a reduction in price to the consumer. This is a delusion and a snare, and all experience contradicts it. It does not reduce the price of anything except the wages of the workman who makes it. So he will have less money to buy productions which are not reduced in price and his condition will be changed from comparative poverty to abject want. Be warned in time. Do not yield to the advice of this Democratic party, which is wrong on every issue and of course is wrong in this.

SPEAKER CARLISLE is reported to have said that no Democrat should be sent to the St. Louis Convention whose views on the tariff are not in accordance with the policy of the Administration. Mr. Carlisle thinks that it would be a great mistake to permit any Democrat who has Protectionist opinions to go into that convention and effect a compromise—or rather a juggle—like that of 1884. Four years ago Mr. Carlisle would have been afraid to speak out so plainly as this for what he now says is in effect that no Protectionist shall be permitted to remain a Democrat.

STEALING BLAINE'S THUNDER.

Just before the assassination of President Garfield, says the Scranton Republican, Secretary of State Blaine was formulating a very comprehensive plan for a Congress of American Nations to be held in Washington. Mr. Blaine's project contemplated the bringing together of duly empowered representatives of the United States, Mexico, Brazil, and all the republics of South and Central America. The object of this Congress of American Nations was the possible adoption of a policy that would be mutually beneficial, by securing better communication and a more extensive interchange of commercial relations. The United States, naturally, expected to derive its full share of resultant benefits, as was fully explained at the time by Mr. Blaine. There are vast markets in the States of Central and South America, as well as in Mexico, that draw their supplies from Europe. Blaine and other American statesmen have for years held that if a proper effort were made this country could and would secure those markets. That was the real purpose of the Congress proposed by Mr. Blaine.

It is to the credit of the present administration that it has recognized the wisdom of the project and so encouraged it that a bill has been passed by both houses of Congress which provides for and instructs the President of the United States to request the governments of Mexico and Central and South America to send representatives to a conference to meet in Washington some time next year. The idea of a Congress, such as is contemplated, was Mr. Blaine's own conception, and while it will be cause for sincere regret that he was not permitted to carry the project through to a full consummation, he will doubtless rejoice to see that at this late day it is being revived. Any attempt to give Cleveland or the Democrats the credit for it is a very poor attempt to steal Blaine's thunder.

MORE than a hundred million dollars are collected every year from internal taxes on tobacco, whiskey and malt liquors. As experience has abundantly shown that internal taxes do not operate as a check upon the use of any of the articles mentioned; and as these taxes are not used by the Government to meet any of the expenses of towns, cities, or States which are caused by the liquor traffic; and as the platform of the National Prohibition party, adopted in 1884, demands the repeal of internal taxes on "alcoholic liquors and tobacco," there would seem to be no good reason why the surplus revenue should not at once be reduced by a simple act of Congress which would repeal all the tobacco taxes and a part if not the whole of the taxes on whiskey and malt liquors. We believe that whisky and malt liquors are proper subjects of taxation, but let the taxes on them be assessed and collected by the States, or let the States if they wish prohibit altogether the manufacture and sale of these alcoholic beverages.

IT is announced that a convention of lawyers will be held in Washington on the 22d of May, which is likely to have an important bearing on the commercial interests of the country. The object is to form a permanent organization of the profession, to be composed of representatives from every bar association in the country. One leading purpose of the organization, when formed, will be to bring about uniformity in the legislation of the States in regard to bills of exchange and promissory notes, and commercial transactions generally, formalities of conveyancing, the execution of wills, legal procedure, marriage and divorce, and other subjects as to which the present heterogeneous system produces endless confusion.

WITHIN the next week Governor Beaver will be called on to appoint an Insurance Commissioner to succeed the present incumbent, Montgomery Foster, Democrat, who has held the office since it was created some years ago. Colonel Grimeson, of Franklin County, is the only Republican applicant thus far known, and he is strongly backed by prominent Republicans from all parts of the State. It is reasonable to conclude, therefore, that the Governor will appoint him.

THE New York Commercial Bulletin reports the aggregate fire losses during April to have been $11,326,350, which is $423,650 less than during the corresponding month of 1887. The losses so far this year, however, have considerably exceeded those for the corresponding period of last year.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

At no time during the past decade have events seemed to point so directly toward a general revolution in European politics as at present. The sensational Boulanger movement in France, the uncertainty of a day concerning the illness of Emperor Frederick of Prussia, the recurring revolutionary schemes in Bulgaria and the East, and the occupation of the Austrian frontier by Russian troops, all indicate the approach apparently of one of those political and social upheavals which periodically change the face of continental Europe. The element in France which holds itself in readiness at all time to attempt the rescue of Alsace and Lorraine at an undestimated cost of blood and treasure is a constant menace to the peace of Western Europe. The lust of power which animates Russia; her intrigues and efforts in the East looking ever to the fulfillment of the dream of Peter the Great, viz: the extending of the boundaries of the Russian Empire to Bosphorus, are another potent factor of uncertainty and unrest. With a dying man upon the throne of Prussia and her former foe burning for revenge, the Czar doubtless sees the opportunity for action. A formal alliance with France would give Alexander the balance of power in continental Europe, against which the combined armies of Austria and Prussia could scarcely stand. The near future is big with events so far as the peace of Europe is concerned.

IT IS really astonishing the hold that Blaine has upon the masses of the Republican party. There are other men in the party ranks whom the party honors and would gladly elevate to the Presidency, but there is no mistaking the fact that no name is so magnetic, none can call forth so much enthusiasm and none command so enthusiastic and hearty a following as James G. Blaine. Although he has declared his intention not to be a candidate this year for the Presidential nomination, and those intentions are generally accepted as sincere on his part the mass of Republican voters are not willing to give up their leader and State after State is electing delegates who will vote for Blaine in the Convention, notwithstanding his letter of refusal to be a candidate. Even where states have declared for a favorite son of the state, after a complimentary vote to their own man, they are for Blaine. It is daily becoming more evident that unless Mr. Blaine shall, before the assembling of the Convention, positively declare that he will not accept even a unanimous nomination, he will be the choice of the Chicago Convention and again become the standard bearer of his party in the great political battle in 1888.

There is no organized campaign for Blaine by his friends. He needs no booming. The simple mention of that name in a Convention from Maine to California brings out more real enthusiasm than is shown for all other possible candidates combined. There's no chrystalizing of public sentiment around any other name and we believe it is a truth that nine tenths of the Republican voters of the country prefer Blaine to any other name mentioned. Is it possible to find any other name which can rally to its support so large a number of voters or command so enthusiastic support, or draw more largely from the ranks of the enemy? If there is such an one his name is yet to be given to the public.

HERE is something on which persons engaged in the iron business can reflect with profit. We copy from a leading article in the London (England) Colliery Guardian of recent date: "No event of greater magnitude has occurred in the iron, steel, and mining industries for a long time past than the proposal which is now made to effect a radical change in the fiscal policy of the United States. America has been of immense value as a market to the trade of this country. The effect which, on iron and steel making, the bare possibility even of the admittance of raw material free of duty, together with reductions in the duties on some descriptions of iron and steel, has produced upon our exchanges is a portent in itself. The Scotch warrant holders took greater advantage of the occurrence than even the probabilities authorized. If President Cleveland should be able to carry out his plan for admission into America free of duty one of the first effects which would be produced on the English iron trade would be the transference of much of the enormous stocks of pig in the Scotch and Cleveland markets to United States ports. Shipments of hematites from Scotland and from the west coast of England would also increase. The iron-ore mines of Lancashire and West Cumberland would be certain to do a greatly enlarged trade with the United States."

THE infinite superiority of the Republican party over the Democratic party, not only in morals, but also in manners is perceived in its conduct in trying circumstances. For instance, in the matter of Hayes' and Cleveland's occupancy of the Presidential position. Hayes' election was decided to be legal by a commission which was of their own creation, hence he held the position by a title the fairest possible and which should be indisputable. Clevelands election was accomplished only by a glaring miscount of votes in several of the states. The Democrats were afraid to submit to any such investigation and recount as was agreed to by the Republicans for President Hayes. The Republicans did not adopt the policy of speaking on every occasion in a disrespectful manner of Cleveland as the Democrats did of Hayes in refusing to accord him the Presidential title, although Cleveland has less claim to the title than any man who ever filled the place of Chief Executive. But the Republican party is naturally patriotic and its own self-esteem influences it to treat the occupant of the presidential chair with that respect due the position even when unworthily filled.—The Presidential Candidate.

IT is worthy of note that John Martin, the editor of the New Mississippian who was killed in the street duel with Gen. Wirt Adams, the Postmaster at Jackson, Miss., on Monday, was the author of the "Red Manifesto," which, printed in blood red, with two pistols and shotguns displayed at the head, notified the colored people of Jackson last December that they would not be allowed to vote. As he lived, so he died. His end was what could be expected. Such a bully might for a time lord it over his fellowmen, but he was bound sooner or later to find someone who would have the courage and inclination to oppose force with force.

SENATOR INGALLS is making all the copperheads in the Senate writhe in agony. Under his truthful and severe scoring even the most dignified among them are forced to say things which are not only breaches of parliamentary rules, but, throughout all of it Ingalls maintains his gentlemanly and polite demeanor. Voorhees, of Indiana, who we always supposed was a gentleman, even if he is a Democrat, was led into using such low epithets as are employed by corner loafers. He disgraced himself and created an objectionable scene in the Senate.

SENATOR BLACKBURN, strangely as it was thought at the time, was silent throughout Ingalls' terrific cannonading of the Confederates in the Senate, although it was understood that he had loaded for bear. After Ingalls had been going for a time, Blackburn was handed a note from a dear friend on the outside begging him to say not a word at the hazzard of his reputation. He said that Ingalls was loaded to the muzzle for him, having secured certified copies of his war record, and that he would ruin him (Blackburn) if he took any part.

THE President is planting vines on his Oak View property at Washington, and it will be just Cleveland's luck if they shall supply grapes for the White House in the course of two or three years.—Watchman.

In two or three years as Cleveland sits at a distance and sees the grapes used at the White House, he will quietly murmur, as the fox did, "Those grapes are sour."

IT must be very galling to Senator Voorhees to have the people of his own State, who know him like a book, to not only indorse all Senator Ingalls' charges of disloyalty against him, but also to invite Mr. Ingalls to address them in convention. When Voorhees went out of his way to attack Ingalls he had no idea he was arousing a sleeping lion. He probably knows it now.

AS THE the druggists of Iowa have decided to sell no liquor for any purpose whatever, it begins to look as if prohibition was really going to be observed in that State.

Poetry.

Spring Winds.

I heard the winds with unseen feet
Pass up the long and weary street;

They sang, "We come from hill to glen
To touch the brows of toiling men.

"That each may know and feel we bring
The first faint breathings of the spring,

"To sweeten lane, and street, and square,
And lighten all the dusty air.

"The hills from which we come lie bright
In something of a richer light.

"The long, deep glens and woodlands lie
In softer shadows to the eye.

"The birds have caught a finer note
To throb with joy each feathered throat.

"The streamlet echoes sweet and clear
The liquid pulsings of the year;

"And everywhere you look is seen
Life dawning in a tinge of green."

Thus sang the winds as up the street
They passed with heard but unseen feet;

And, as they went, a cloud above
Sent downward tears of spring and love.

Our Story Teller.

IN A BAD LINE.

"It's a big haul we'll have to-night, boys."

The speaker was a heavily-built, sinister-looking man of thirty or thereabouts. He leaned his elbow on the pine table and snuffed the candle, while an ominous silence followed his remark.

It was an oddly-grouped company in an odd retreat. Savage-looking men of all nationalities, in an uncomfortable grotesque apartment constructed under a pier in New York harbor.

Above could be heard the tramp, tramp of those who swarmed around the docks, and below the restless lapping of the dark waters.

The "Pirates' Retreat," as they had romantically named their miserable shelter, made of old planks and driftwood, and furnished simply with boxes and kegs for seats besides the pine table and tallow candle before mentioned.

Three of the men had been engaged in a game of cards around this table, at the conclusion of which one of them made the opening remark.

"What do you propose to do?" asked the youngest of the three, not over twenty.

"It's land game we're after to-night In fact, we want to crack a crib—we three."

"I'm no burglar," asserted the young man, rising haughtily. "I joined you for a little adventure—cruising around vessels and landing smuggled supplies. You call yourselves pirates. The pirates I read of were at least brave, and attacked vessels in open warfare, taking their chances like honest soldiers, didn't hide like wharf rats, never willing to face a foe, but always ready to stab in the back."

The countenance of the first speaker underwent a curious change during this speech, and at its close he clapped his hands three times. Instantly the hum of voices ceased, and twenty pairs of of eyes regarded him expectantly.

"Men, listen! Our young bantam cock is trying to cackel, but we'll have no chicken hearts here. Harkee, you go with me and Jim Hany to-night. Follow my lead and do as I tell you, or we'll chuck you in the harbor with this 'ere round yur purty neck!"

He lifted, as he spoke, a heavy iron chain, with a fifty pound weight attached.

"You jined us to do as yer bid. Now, which will ye have?"

The young man looked at the evil faces around him and knew he dared not disobey.

"You leave me no chance," he said reseating himself. "I will obey orders."

"That sounds sensible-like," said the first speaker, who was called "captain," replacing the weight in the box on which he was sitting and taking out a lantern. "It's about time to start, and I'll give you a few pointers. It's an old chap as counts his money by the thousands—counts it in a stone closet in the cellar, where he keeps it. He's a miser of the first water, old an' bent, an' sca'cely wuth knockin' in the head. We're all ready to take the swag. We know whar it is, an' if the old chap stays sensibly in bed, thar'll be little trouble. If he don't it's yer first venture, Bill an' me'll give you the soft snap—jest to stand outside, keep an eye for the cops and other interferers. Come on now, it's time to start."

Not another word was spoken during the stealthy midnight march, until they paused in front of an old tenement house fronting the harbor.

"Here's the crib. All serene! Stand thar, you! Come on, Bill!"

And the two disappered, leaving John Newcomb standing stiffly against an old shed, that shielded him from observation.

He saw one flash of the lantern in the cellar, and then a white figure leaped through the open window, and would have disappered, but he sprang forward and caught it in his arms.

There was a weak sort of struggle, and then it lay limp in his arms. It seemed more spirit than mortal—so meagre and frail.

He lighted a match, carefully shading it, and saw, during the momentary flash, the thin, white face, jetty brows and streaming black hair of a young girl glimmering ghost-like in the flickering light.

He laid her flat on the ground, and divesting himself of his coat, threw it over her, concealing her gleaming white garments, just as the burly form of the captain filled the window.

"Hang it!" he said, in a frightened whisper; "did you see the ghost?"

"No, I saw no ghost."

"Well, I did, and so did Bill an' the ould divil himself there, too, ready to holler for the cops. Had to give him a sore throat to get at the stone closet, and found the chist guarded by a great, starin' ghost. Fiends and furies?"

The white figure had risen suddenly, as though come out of the ground, the long spectral-like arms extended.

With a cry of terror, the captain disappeared. Close at his heels followed Bill, and John Newcomb was left alone with his mysterious charge.

"Oh, sir, pity me! save me!" she cried.

And tottering forward she again fell fainting in his arms.

He heard a strange gurgling sound issuing from the cellar—like human tones choked and cut off in their utterance.

John was as brave as a lion. He knew the danger of entering the house at this moment, but hesitated not an instant.

Still holding the light figure in his arms, he sprang through the cellar window, The lantern stood on the floor.

The window through which he had entered was the only outside opening, and closing its solid wooden shutters behind him, he was alone with a midnight horror.

An old, white-haired man lay upon the floor, a gaping wound in his throat, from which life blood was swiftly flowing.

John gently deposited his unconscious burden on the floor, and just as he did so the old man's struggling breath ceased forever.

The helpless girl now claimed all his attention, and as he looked down at the white face it almost seemed that death had done it work there also.

Taking a flask of brandy from his pocket, he forced a few drops of it between the pale lips, chafed the little cold hands, and soon the jetty fringes disentangled themselves, and a pair of soft, black eyes looked inquiringly, but trustingly into his.

"Where am I? What has happened? Who are you?" she asked attempting to rise.

She seemed scarcely eighteen, with a weired sort of beauty and a sweet voice, that went straight to John's heart.

As gently as possible, he told her what had occurred.

"I am glad he is dead. He was called my guardian, but he starved and abused me, kept me a prisoner in the cellar, and my money locked in an iron box—ten thousand dollars. There it is," pointing to the closet. "You may have it all, if you will take me away from here," and she struggled to her feet. "Ugh! I don't want to look at him," she said, averting her face.

"Certainly not, my dear child!" said John, stepping forward, and covering the hideous face with his handkerchief. Turning again toward her, a sudden impulse seized him.

"I will take you away from here—take good care of you and your money—if you will marry me," he said.

She looked at him critically for a moment from under her long, black lashes, and then said, simply:

"Yes, I will."

The tragedy made only one more turn in the always shifting kaleidoscope of New York crime. John Newcomb's real connection with it was never suspected; and, feeling innocent of the man's blood, he made no special effort to implicate himself. The murderers could not be identified, but the "pirates retreat" was immediately broken up.

John took his girl-wife and her ten thousand dollars, which he found safe in the iron box, and went West. Her physical health was thus restored, and John's moral health also.

Years afterward, in the Western wilds, he was forced to witness the execution of a couple of horse-thieves, condemned by the stern court of Judge Lynch. And when he recognized in them his two companions of that terrible night, he felt that if horse-stealing did not deserve capital punishment, these two were only at last getting their just deserts.

A Western Paradise.—Easters Man: "I notice Prairie City is attracting a good attention now; must have a pretty good trade." Western Man: "It is not a commercial centre, but a manufacturing metropolis; greatest place yet; you ought to move there; it's the belle city of the plains, I tell you; perfect Heaven on earth; everybody's making money; new factories going up right along. If you want to see an earthly paradise, just you go to Prairie City. You'll never leave it, I tell you." Eastern Man: "Are there many factories already in operation?" Western Man: "Many? The smoke is so thick that you can't see across the street."

A BUG HARNESSED WITH GOLD AND SILVER.

A large throng was gathered around the window of a jewelry store in Broadway, between Berry street and Bedford avenue, Brooklyn. The cause of so much attention was an insect about one and one-quarter inches long, and half an inch wide. On the back was a small gold and silver harness, to which was attached a miniature dog-cart. The bug dragged the cart all around the window, much to the amusement of the onlookers. An inquisitive spectator went into the store to inquire about the strange steed. The proprietor, Mr. E. Hollers, said that the bug originally came from Yucatan, and is very rare around these parts, as they cannot live owing to the frequent changes in the climate.

"This one," he continued, "is a first class specimen, and I think it will live. I have trained it, you see, and in a short time I will have it climbing up and down a ladder."

"What does it feed on?" was asked.

"Rotten wood," was the reply.

The skin of the insect is very beautiful. It shows this best, however, when under a microscope, when it looks mottled, like an alligator's.

The value of the bug is from $10 to $15 outside of the harness, which can be made as costly as desired. What few there are in use are owned by ladies, who use them as ornaments.

THEY UNDERSTOOD ENGLISH.

For the benefit of many Americans who, because they do not speak French, imagine that no one in Paris understands English but themselves, here are portraits of myself and wife as sketched by two young ladies from the States who sat opposite us the other day in an omnibus at Versailles:

"She would be really pretty if her nose wasn't such a narrow escape from a pug, wouldn't she?"

"Yes, she would so. Isn't she stylish? I declare if her dress isn't made on the same model as the one I have ordered at Pomeroy's."

"How do you suppose she ever could marry that image sitting beside her? They seem so fond of each other, too."

"Oh, the Lord only knows. I expect he had money or a title. But, goodness alive, I wouldn't marry such a chimpanzee if he were covered with diamonds, and was a—"

Here the omnibus stopped, and, as I helped my wife to alight, I said in as Addisonian English as I could command:

"My darling, I have never regretted that you brought all the money into the family so much as I do this minute.

As we walked laughingly away I took a glimpse of those young Philadelphia ladies out of the corner of my eye, and I don't think I ever saw anybody look cheaper. It kept them busy dodging us through the grounds that afternoon, and I rather incline to the belief that they spoiled their own pleasure by their own little tongues.

SAMBO WAS CAUTIOUS.

Old Uncle Mose had never been to the theater, but, having put up bills for a theatrical troupe and having received a complimentary ticket to the gallery, he concluded to attend the performance. He went dressed up in his Sunday attire. He had not been in the theater more than half an hour when he emerged shaking his head.

"Don't you like the performance, old man?" asked the surprised doorkeeper.

"No, sah, I don't like dem purformances now way ye can fix it."

"Why, what is the matter?"

"Nuffin' much 'ceptin' a woman on de platform got to talkin' 'bout family 'fairs wid de husband ob anudder 'oman an' I didn't perpose to stay. My old marster in Viginny got shot plum ter pieces for doing dat berry foolishness as is goin' on an' I'se a judishus nigger, I is. I don't want ter be shot in de leg by mistake, or be brunged up as a witness in the case when it strikes de courts."

The Ants and the Cyclone.

It is stated that about a century since there appeared on the island of Grenada numberless colonies of ants. No one knew whence they came, but they so multiplied that they became fatal to the sugar cane, and as that was the principal industry the gravest results were apprehended. All expedients failed to dislodge them, and the government, in 1778, offered a reward of $100,000 for any invention to destroy them. In 1780 nature came to their relief in the way of a terrible cyclone and rainfall, which blew down what cane was standing, drowned out the ants, and a new prosperity followed.

"I often wonder what my ancestor Adam said when he first met Eve." "Was he an ancestor of yours?" "Certainly." "Then I guess he asked her to loan him two dollars."

What the Violin Can Do.

All other instruments lack the power of "singing." In this respect the piano, the harp, the guitar, and its first cousin, the banjo, are notably deficient; since, rigidly considered, they are merely instruments of precussion, and cannot even sustain the notes which they emit. The flute the organ, and all other wind instruments, on the other hand, do possess this seetenente capacity, but they cannot, like the human voice, fill in, so to speak, the gaps in the gamut. But are there any gaps in the gamut? Most undoubtedly there are—enormous gaps. The octave at present in use among all civilized nations comprises but thirteen distinct sounds all told. But in the scale constructed by scientists—Helmholtz and others—and hence called the philosophical scale or gamut, the number of distinct sounds is seventeen; and even this gives but a very faint idea of almost innumerable degree of tone, distinguished by an acute ear, between, say middle C and its octave. Now, the human voice can render all these shades of sound, and so also can the violin tribe. The music produced on these instruments may, therefore, most aptly be termed "linked sweetness long drawn out."—Cassell's Family Journal

What Came of Advertising for a Wife.

Lewis Heiserick until recently owned a farm in Lycoming county, this State. To-day he is in a destitute condition. He wanted a wife, and some time ago advertised in a New York newspaper, the result of which was that he was soon in communication with a young woman residing in Gotham. Subsequently Mr. Heiserick married the fair dame, and now he is no doubt very sorry. Shortly after they were wedded the young wife induced her husband to dispose of his farm and invest the proceeds in the millinery business. A purchaser was found, and the pride of his younger days was sold.

Two weeks ago husband and wife went to Philadelphia to buy a line of goods. A merchant on Vine street finally succeeded in pleasing the couple, and a fair lot of stuff was selected, after which they returned to the hotel. Then the unsuspecting Heiserick give his spouse the money necessary to pay the bill and the newly made bride departed.

Mr. Heiserick, the once prosperous and well-to-do farmer, is now without money, farm, and wife. Nothing has been heard of the woman.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

Pullman, Pa., is to have an electric belt railroad five miles long.

Mr. Magnus Volk has applied electricity to propel a dog-cart. The current is provided by sixteen accumulators capable of keeping up a supply for six hours. The cart travels nine miles an hour on asphalt.

An electro-magnet with a carrying capacity of 800 pounds is attached to a crane in the Cleveland Steel Works, which readily picks up billets and other masses of iron without the aid of any other device. A boy is thus enabled to do the work of a dozen men.

A patent has been granted in England for the manufacture of vinegar from tomatoes. The fruit, when ripe, or nearly so, is reduced to a pulp and steeped in water for twenty-four hours. The resulting liquor is drawn off, sugar added, and the whole allowed to ferment.

An interesting development in photograph is in the use of clockwork in printing from negatives. By this means a continuous web of sensitized paper is drawn at suitable intervals under a negative exposed to a source of light. After printing the paper is drawn, still by the mechanism, through "washer," "toner" and "fixer" successively, and appears finally as a series of finished pictures ready for mounting, and all alike in exposure, color and tone.

A Dream of the Past.

I wandered to the country, Tom; I sat beside the brook; I tried to catch nimble trout with line and baited hook. The banks were just as muddy and the current just as slow as in the days I used to fish, some twenty years ago. No people now were with me, Tom; I squatted there alone and tried to yank out massive fish, where there, alas! were none. Mosquitoes bit me just as hard and chanted just as low as when they used to bore their wells, some twenty years ago. And when I tried to swipe them once, and break their dreary song, the bank rolled down into the creek and carried me along. The water was as moist, my friend, the mud as deep below, as when I rolled into the creek, some twenty years ago. The line got wound about my limbs, the hook stuck in my eye, the pole twirled round the same old way, and hit me on the fly; I reeled off curses quaintly then, and naught could stop their flow—I cursed as loudly and as long as twenty years ago. And when I started through the woods to reach my humble home my eyes were full of last year's leaves, my ears were full of foam; a snake sat up and bit me, Tom, just as that snake you know, that left its trade mark on my leg some twenty years ago. And then I to the market went, as you, of course, will guess, and having captured ne'er a fish, I had to buy a mess; and then those withered scrubs I bought I to my wife did show, and told the same old fairy tale of twenty years ago.

WASHINGTON'S SWORD.

A large number of private and local bills were passed in the Senate without objection until one was reached appropirating $20,000 for the purchase of a sword belonging to General Washington from Miss Virginia Taylor Lewis.

Mr. Cockrell remarked that it seemed to be a very expensive sword and he inquired whether there was any identification of it.

Mr. Evarts said that the sword had been useful to the United States when used by its former owner. In that relation it had value. As a mere scabbard and blade it had not any great value. It was one of the five swords mentioned in General Washington's will and bequeathed to various of his kindred. The first of them was the one which had the traditional credit of having been presented to General Washington by Frederick the Great, with the message that it was a present "from the oldest General in the world." That sword was now owned by the State of New York, having been purchased, with other articles, for the sum of $30,000.

A long discussion ensued, in which Messrs. Cockrell, Vest and Reagan opposed the bill and Messrs. Evarts, Voorhees and Hoar defended it. Mr. Cockrell defended the purchase of General Shields' swords because they were intrinsically valuable, which was not true in the present case.

What a Cyclone Did for a Dakota Man.

A clerk of the Land Office, who is somewhat of a wag, and has recently returned from Dakota, where he was sent to investigate some land matters, astonished his colleagues in the office by the astonishing fertility of his imagination He tells numberless stories of the accomodating qualities of the average Dakota hurricane.

"There is a man out there," says he, "who had pre-emption and homestead claims adjoining. He had just proved up the former, when the following remarkable occurance took place. The day after his proof had been made, he was eating his evening meal in the shanty with a neighbor. 'Say pard,' he remarked, 'now that I've got my pre-emption, I'll have to move this house into the homestead claim, as it will be cheaper than putting up another.' Hardly were the words out of his mouth, when one of those sudden small cyclones struck the shanty, and, strange as it may seem, lifted the house off the pre-emption, and set it down on the homestead, without breaking anything except a shaving cup."

What Happened to the Commission Man.

A popular commission merchant of Toledo recently celebrated his 37th birthday. His wife had, of course, prepared a surprise for him, as is the custom nowadays, and the neighbors were duly informed that their presence was urgently requested at the B—— mansion at 10 o'clock that night. About 10:30 Mr. B——came meandering home from "the club," and, as he expected his wife had gone to bed, stole silently in by the side door. But his wife was not abed.

"John," said she, as he entered, "step into the sitting room and light the gas, please."

John, without the least suspicion, obeyed, and as he stood in the center of the room, reaching for the gas jet, called out:

"Say, Mary, don't you have any more of the —— codfish for breakfast in the morning. Give us eggs for a change."

The yell that greeted this sally fairly shook the house. All around the room sat some thirty couples of his neighbors, fairly laughing themselves to death. The host and hostess, appreciating the joke, joined in the laugh. A merrier crowd never sat around a table than that which celebrated the 37th birthday of—no, his name must not be given, must it, John?

She Had Him.

"The happiest moment of a man's life," he said tenderly, "is when he knows that he has won a girl's heart."

"It is?" she shyly asked.

"Yes," he replied; "now tell me what is the happiest moment in a woman's life.

She blushed and hung her head.

"Tell me," he whispered.

"You won't think me too bold?"

"Certainly not."

"When she's asked to name the day."

—The people of Bellefonte like to be imposed in and defrauded just as the people of other parts of Uncle Sam's country are. For instance, none of them have too much money, but nevertheless they stood around a medicine man on Saturday who sold watches and other stuff in connection with his alleged medicine. He watched the people and saw quite a number of gullible ones among them. So his watches and medicine went off like hot cakes. It is said that when he left town he carried with him $240 which he "took in" here. The people were also 'taken in," as their watches were merely the cases without works and valueless as time keepers. The medicine—well, there's everything in faith, and if the purchasers have sufficient faith in the stuff perhaps it will cure them.

ANGRY STATESMEN

Another Disgraceful Scene in the United States Congress.

ALMOST A FREE FIGHT.

Congressmen Call Each Other Liars, and Shake Threatening Fingers Under the Defiant Noses of Their Fellow Statesmen—Cause of the Row.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The house devoted its time Saturday almost entirely to tariff discussion, Mr. Wheeler, of Alabama, taking the floor to finish his speech in favor of the bill.

Mr. Bland, of Missouri, followed on the same side of the question. He criticised the Republicans for not having brought in a bill reducing taxation, and denounced pools and trusts as evils directly traceable to high tariff.

Mr. Woodburn, of Nevada, ridiculed the claim of the Democrats that their party was the friend of the workingman, and instanced the reductions made in salaries of government employes by the present administration. He denounced the policy outlined by the Mills bill, which, he said, surrendered American markets and American labor to the free traders of Great Britain. The Cobden club was an association of British manufacturers organized for the avowed purpose of destroying the protective tariff system in this country, and on the roll of members he found the names of prominent Democrats, among them Senators Beck and Vance; Secretaries Bayard and Endicott; John Griffin Carlisle, William R. Morrison, and other Democrats. These were a few of the members who had combined to conquer and subdue American energy and enterprise.

Near the conclusion of his speech Mr. Woodburn referred to Mayor Hewitt, of New York, as having basely apologized to the British minister at Washington for his contemptible duplicity in introducing a resolution of inquiry as to the legality of the trial of an American citizen condemned and executed by a British jury and a British court. This allusion to Mayor Hewitt laid the foundation for a very exciting scene a few moments later, in which the lie passed between Messrs. Brumm and Bryce, and when it appeared for a moment as though they would come to blows.

When Mr. Woodburn finished his speech Mr. Bryce, of New York, arose and excitedly denounced as misrepresentations Mr. Woodburn's allusions to Mayor Hewitt.

Mr. Woodburn replied that he said nothing but what he could prove, and Mr. Bryce exclaimed:

"I say it is false."

Mr. Houk, of Tennessee, turned the excitement to laughter by remarking:

"That is what a Democrat always does."

Mr. Brumm, of Pennsylvania, the author of the resolution referred to, suddenly entered into the controversy. He was seated close to Mr. Bryce, and springing to his feet, shook his fingers in the latter's face, and reasserted Mr. Woodburn's statement, and said Mr. Bryce uttered a falsehood if he denied it.

Both men became very much excited, and shook their fingers in each others faces. Members gathered around and there was wild excitement on the floor.

In the confusion Mr. Bryce was heard to call Mr. Brumm outright, and the lie was passed between them.

The chair suspended all action until the confusion subsided, and the members took their seats.

Mr. Hopkins, of Illinois, set the house in a roar by inquiring:

"Is this the senate of the United States?"

A few minutes later quiet was restored, Mr. Moore, of Texas, began a tariff speech, and Messrs. Brumm and Bryce had apparently buried the hatchet and were seated side by side talking over the episode.

Mr. Moore favored the bill. He wanted American labor freed from the exactions of the tariff and it could compete with the world.

Mr. McCormick, of Pennsylvania, opposed the bill, especially criticizing the lumber sections of the bill.

The Recent Fracas in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Senator Ingalls' speech in the Voorhees' controversy has not yet appeared in The Record. It has been anxiously looked for, but has so far failed to come out. Several newspaper men who have applied to the senator for a copy of the speech have been denied upon the ground that he is holding it for revision. It is whispered that next week there will probably be some step taken toward expunging from The Record the violent personalties employed in that controversy. Whatever is being done is kept very quiet.

A 19-Year-Old Defaulter.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The swindling operations of another trusted employe have been brought to light. Samuel W. Wray, an insurance agent at Nos. 308 and 310 Walnut street, who represents the Mutual Reserve Fund Life association of New York and other similar organizations, visited police headquarters and reported that his chief clerk, John K. McWilliams, aged 19 years, had absconded, taking with him $3,200 in cash. On Tuesday night last he bid his relatives goodby, and told them he was going to California on business.

Garroted by a Woman.

KANSAS CITY, May 7.—As James McGovan, a laborer, was walking up Mulberry street he was approached by a burly mulatto woman, who forcibly took his pocketbook away from him. He attempted to regain it and she drew a razor and cut his throat from back of the ear to the chin. McGowan is in a critical condition and the woman is under arrest.

CHICAGO, May 7.—James Edwards, the switchman who was assaulted on a Burlington train in this city on Thursday afternoon, is dying. None of the men concerned in the attack upon Edwards have as yet been found.

KAISER FRITZ VERY WEAK.

The Pause in the Progress of His Disease Is Only Temporary.

BERLIN, May 7.—It is not disputed here that the general dearth of news regarding the emperor cannot be interpreted as a good sign, as is usually the case under similar circumstances. While the fever has diminished and the temperature become more normal, the strength of the patient has undoubtedly decreased, and his general condition excites great anxiety, in view of the probable contingency of a relapse in the near future.

Many symptoms go to show that the standstill in the progress of the disease is but temporary. The secretion of pus is more copious, and the stoppages of matter in the canula more frequent. The emperor has become listless, and has lost interest in his surroundings. State matters into which two weeks ago he threw himself heart and soul now possess no interest for him. He is daily losing strength. No wonder that his attendants look forward with misgivings to the next acute stage of his malady.

A HORRIBLE CRIME.

The Decaying and Partly Rat-Eaten Body of a Murdered Woman Found in the Cellar of an Abandoned House.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., May 7.—Last September Mrs. George Keeler suddenly disappeared from her home in Keelerville, and her husband stated that she had gone west to visit relatives. Keeler himself shortly afterward left for California. A few days ago the authorities of the county received an anonymous letter, in which the writer stated that if the cellar of Keeler's house, which had been abandoned, was searched something would be disclosed.

The sheriff and two constables visited the house, and, after a close inspection of the premises, were horrified to find the decomposed body of a woman. All the clothes were eaten off by rats, and the flesh was nearly stripped off the bones. The body was identified as that of Mrs. Keeler by her earrings. There was a deep cut in the forehead, as if made by a hatchet.

It was known that Mr. and Mrs. Keeler did not live happily together. Mrs. Keeler was a young and handsome woman, while her husband was intensely jealous, though he was not circumspect himself, and was intimate with a young woman named Matthews. The knowledge of her infidelity, gained through the finding of some letters in his pocket, made him very angry, and frequent quarrels ensued. A detective has started for California, and, if possible, will arrest Keeler, who is suspected of the crime. Keeler's father was the founder of the little town where the terrible tragedy was committed. A reward of $1,000 is offered for the murderer's capture.

Little Hope for the Anarchs.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., May 7.—Friends of Governor Oglesby say that he will never pardon Fielden, Schwab and Neebe, the imprisoned Chicago Anarchists. They think, however, that he will commute the sentence of Joe Mackin after the November election, when Mackin will only have another year to serve.

Killed with a Hairpin.

BOSTON, May 7.—Forest Johnson, who was stabbed in the hand with a long steel hairpin by Mrs. Margaret A. Young in a saloon in East Boston, April 16, died of blood poisoning. Mrs. Young was out on $500 bail and cannot now be found. It is believed she has fled the city.

The Brewers' Strike in Chicago.

CHICAGO, May 7.—The striking brewers are as confident as ever of winning, although the bosses state they have all the men they want, and are carrying on their business satisfactorily. It is expected that the strikers will have a conference with the bosses very soon.

Ex-Senator McDonald's Illness.

NEW YORK, May 7.—Ex-Senator McDonald has passed the crisis of a dangerous illness, but his recovery is not yet assured. His physicians say if he gets through the next twenty-four hours all right his chances will be much improved.

Killed While Coupling Cars.

AUBURN, N. Y., May 7.—David Bresnihan, a brakeman in the New York Central freight yards, in this city, was instantly killed while coupling cars. His foot caught on a frog throwing him to the track. One car passed over his body.

Round House and Locomotives Burned.

ST. IGNACE, Mich., May 7.—The round house of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic road has been destroyed by fire, together with four locomotives stalled there. The fire started from a spark from a locomotive. Loss, $50,000.

He Bled Himself to Death.

TIFFIN, O., May 7.—John Veitch, aged 46, committed suicide at Bettsville, this county, by cutting the main arteries in his leg and arm and gashing his throat six times with a pocket knife. Financial trouble is the supposed cause.

SPORTING NEWS.

In speaking of baseballs the other day, a well known dealer in that line of goods said that 6,000,000 baseballs were made and sold every year. Of this number his firm sold 2,000,000. This little piece of information will go a long way toward convincing the skeptic that some baseball is played in this country. Of course this number does not represent any one grade of balls, but includes the 10 cent ball as well as that sold for $1.50.

Manager Wright and the players of the Philadelphia club proposes to play a testimonial game for the benefit of Pitcher Ferguson's widow.

Harry Wright has traded Childs, one of his "colts," for Gil Gardner, of Washington. The latter will play second.

Things do not look so rosy in the Central League as they should, for the simple reason that just what was feared most is likely to happen, and that is, the Jersey City and Newark clubs are so much stronger than the other clubs of the league that it is likely to have a depressing effect upon the whole league. Something should be done at once to make the clubs more equal.

Gen. Paine, the owner of the Volunteer, has laid her up for the season. In answer to the question if he would sell her provided proper parties came forward, he said Saturday that he would, though the Volunteer would not be disposed of hastily, nor at a sacrifice. He had no hesitation in saying that she was for sale at proper figures. From this it appears that Gen. Paine is going to take a much needed rest from yachting this season, at least in racing. In case the Volunteer changes hands it is to be hoped that the party purchasing her will sail her as she deserves to be, and that her own proud record, thus far never equaled by any yacht, will not be broken.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, May 7th, '88.

Senator Ingalls has been tendered a public reception by the Republican National League of this city. It is in recognition of the service to the republican party which he performed last Tuesday in the Senate Chamber by showing up the hypocrisy of such copperheads as Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, who, during the rebellion, devoted all their energies to putting obstacles in the way of the government.

So well did the Kansas Senator do his work that Mr. Voorhees completely disgraced himself in the eyes of all respectable people by using language unbecoming a gentleman, such as, "liar, scoundrel, dirty dog," etc. Truth very often hurts, but Senator Ingalls has the courage to to tell it when occasion demands it, no matter who is thereby.

F. E Nash, General Superintendent of the Railway mail service, has tendered his resignation, to take effect upon the appointment of his successor. He was one of Mr. Vilas' appointments.

A delegation representing the maimed soldiers' league was before the house committee on pensions Friday to urge the early consideration of the bills making an increase in the pensions now paid to persons who lost an eye, arm or leg in the service. Another delegation favored the per diem pension bill.

The Senate committee on Labor have made a favorable report on the House bill to prohibit the employment of alien labor on public works.

The silver men in Congress are complaining bitterly against the unjust manner in which the administration is treating their interests. Senator Stewart, of Nevada, introduced a bill in the Senate which requires the Secretary of the Treasury to purchase and coin not less than $4,000,000 worth of silver bullion every month. The Senator stated that this bill involved no new question, but was only intended to compel the administration to carry out laws already on our statute books, which had been openly disregarded by the Secretary of the Treasury, until the currency of the country had become contracted to such an extent that was seriously felt in all branches of trade and industry. England was reaping the benefit of the present un-American financial policy of this Government, and he hoped sometime to see an American, who would put the interests of his own country at the head of all others, directing the affairs of the United States.

The House was the scene of a digraceful squabble on Saturday last. Mr. Woodburn had just finished his tariff speech in which he taxed the democrats with being members of the Cobden Club, and stated that the resolution introduced in the interest of American citizens confined in British jails had been suppressed by Mr. Hewitt in the Forty-eighth Congress, and that Mr. Hewitt had gone to the British Minister and apologized for the resolution.

When Mr. Woodburn concluded, Mr. Bryce, of New York, got up and said the statement was false.

This caused some excitement and brought a dozen republican members to their feet, and every one of them reaffirmed Mr. Woodburn's statement.

Mr. Brumm, of Pa., the author of the resolution refered to, reasserted Mr. Woodburn's statement and added that Mr. Bryce uttered a falsehood if he denied it. Then Messrs. Brumm and Bryce advanced towards each other in a threatening manner, each giving the other the lie direct, while the Chairman had difficulty in securing order.

Two such scenes as this in one week in our National Legislature is entirely beyond all question. But for Voorhees, the chances are that this would not have taken place in the House. Our lower House of lawmakers is much too easily infected by the example of the upper for the latter to be careless regarding parliamentary rules.

Senator Stewart has introduced a bill to carry out the provisions of the Chinese treaty.

The nomination of Melville Weston Fuller, of Chicago, as Chief Justice, has been very well received by the republicans, but as much cannot be truthfully said of the democrats. Mr. Fuller was born and educated in Maine, but has been a resident of Chicago for about 30 years. He is in no sense a man of national reputation, but all that is known of him is good. It is said that both the republican Senators from Illinois are heartily in favor of Mr. Fuller. He has not yet accepted, but he will.

Two new pension bills were introduced last week, one by Mr. Edmunds in the Senate, to increase the pensions paid persons who contracted heart disease in the service, and one by Mr. Burrows in the service, and one by Mr. Burrows in the House, to pension all persons who served 90 days or longer in the army or navy, at the rate of one cent per month for each day of actual service.

Representative McKinley, of Ohio, is understood to be at work on a tariff bill which will represent the views of the republicans. It will be offered as a substitute for the Mills tariff bill.

AT WORK AGAIN.

Which Causes Rejoicing Among Employes of the Scotia Mines.

BENORE, May 7.

We have received no definite information concerning the fate of the Mills Tariff Bill; nevertheless, the great strike at Braddocks has been declared off. The mills are now running at their full capacity. The glad tidings of an order to resume operations was flashed over the wires from Col. G. W. Lauder member of the firm of Carnegie Brothers & Co., Pittsburg, Pa., to D. M. Clemson, superintendent of Scotia Ore Mines, on the 5th of May at 2 o'clock p. m. At 5 p. m. the call whistle sounded long and shrill, which was in accordance with a promise made by Mr. Clemson some time previous, that he would give the employes public notice when the message was received. At 7 o'clock p. m. the large American flag was taken from its resting place attached to the ropes and run up the pole to a height of ninety feet. Fifteen minutes later, the Forest City Cornet Band, preceded by the efficient leader, Prof. W. A. Brown, of Spring Mills, appeared upon the scene and discoursed some fine music. A visit to the works to-day convinced the writer that the men are elated over the prospects of steady employment. The output for to-day cannot be estimated at present writing.

Mr. J. Roller Gorsuch and Miss Blanche Robison were married at the bride's parents two miles east of Frankstown, Blair county, on Wednesday, May 2, at 3 o'clock p. m. On Thursday morning the happy couple arrived at the home of the groom's parents at Scotia and were treated to a welcome serenade by the Forest City Cornet Band.

A radiant smile flitted across the broad expanse of the genial countenance, of G. W. Daywalt when the call whistle blew. George has charge of No. 1 excavator and William Housholder handles the throttle on No 2.

William Farber has been promoted to the position of locomotive engineer at the mines.

Joshua Gorsuch, the competent iron smith of this place, visited Bellefonte last Friday evening.

J. M. Goheen, of the enterprising firm of J. C. Goheen & Brother, merchants in Tyrone, paid a visit to his friends at Scotia on Monday.

Howard Items.

Dogwood is in blossom and corn planting has commenced.

Clarence Candy is Jack Newson's first assistant.

W. H. Long, the miller, had a new arrival at his house and is correspondingly happy.

Capt. Wm. Singer, of Post 302, G. A. R., will inspect Post 362 on Saturday evening, May 19.

Dr. James Neff, who recently graduated at Pennsylvania University with honor, is seriously considering the advisability of locating here.

James Lucas again visited Milton last week. There seems to be a strong attraction there for Jimmy.

Miss Betty Stitzer, one of Howard's accomplished young ladies, has been chosen organist at the M. E. Church.

Capt. Henry Holter will commence his contract next week of constructing a coal house and forge building at Curtin works.

Miss Mary Wister, one of the best educated young ladies of this district, was home from Lock Haven Normal on a visit to her parents.

Mr. Wensel, of Moshannon, has commenced the erection of a foundry, the dimensions of which, when completed, will be 60x30 feet with an annex attachment.

Lucas Brothers extension of their store building, when finished, will give them the largest and neatest store room in the county outside of Philipsburg and Bellefonte.

High Constable Ambrose Holter is in trouble. Cattle and hogs are running at large, against the borough ordinances. It is the duty of the high constable to pen them up, but he has no pound to put them in and the Council refuses to build one, and he is threatened with prosecution for non-performance of his duty.

Memorial Day—Howard.

Howard Post, G. A. R., arranged the following programme for the observance of Memorial day, which is the 30th of May:

Assemble at Post room at 8 o'clock a. m. Post leave for Jacksonville at 8.30 a. m., sharp, Memorial services in Jacksonville at 9.30 a. m., sharp. Orations by Rev. J. M. King, of the Evangelical Association, and Lincoln Swartz, of Hublersburg.

Memorial Services in Howard cemetery at 1.30 o'clock p. m. sharp. Oration by Col. Jack Spangler, of Bellefonte. The ministers in charge of the respective churches, the citizens and all the Sunday-Schools are cordially invited to be present and participate in the ceremonies.

The ladies, both single and married, are especially invited to donate and prepare flowers for the occasion. They will meet in Post room the afternoon previous to and the morning of Memorial day.

Rev. J. M. King will preach the Memorial sermon to the Post in the Evangelical church on Sunday afternoon, May, 27, 1888.

R. V. BUTLER, Post Adj't,
HENRY C. HOLTER, Commander.

Blasts from Blanchard.

Is it lawful for a 'squire to collect money on a note placed in his hands for collection and then apply it to his individual account? I answer, no.

Rev. F. L. Bardens preached a very able sermon on last Sunday evening from Philippians 4:6.

Mr. Jacob DeLong has his blacksmith shop nearly completed and will soon commence work.

A platform has been erected for the choir in the Liberty Baptist church. The work was done by J. P. Linn.

—Mr. William McCafferty, who lives on Beaver street, while crossing the street from his home to the residence of a neighbor, one evening of last week, fell and broke his leg. Mr. McC. has been crippled for many years and the accident confines him to his bed. Dr. H. K. Hoy is attending him.

—Mrs. Immel, wife of Jonathan Immel, who lived near the Milesburg toll gate, died on Saturday evening. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, the interment being in the Advent church yard. Mrs. Immel leaves a family of children who are thus deprived of a mother's care.

Base Ball.

Fashion,

ands ociety, impose many privations upon the semale sex in the way of dress. First it is one freak, and then another, and from the fact, that many of them are unhealthy in the extreme, it is small wonder that many women succumb, and that "female weaknesses" are the too frequent resnlt. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only positive cure for these complaints in existence, and thousands of women can bear witness to its efficacy. "Favorite Prescription" is a legitimate medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists under a positive guarantee, from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, or Anti-billious Granules, Laxative or Cathartic according to size o. dose. Purely vegetable.

—We are sorry to learn from the Tyrone Daily Herald that Mr. John T. Fowler, of Fowler Station, has become temporarily insane and, on Saturday, was taken to the asylum in Danville. He has been an active business man of wide acquaintance throughout this section. We hope that proper care and rest will restore him to the full possession of reason and his excellent business facilities.

Reducing the Surplus.

The disposition of the Surplus in the U. S. Treasury engages the attention of our Statesmen, but a more vital question has our attention, and that is the reduction of the Surplus of Consumptives. Since the discovery and introduction of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, there has been a marked decrease in the mortality from this dreaded disease, and it is possible to still further reduce the number of Consumptives. How? By keeping constantly at had a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and using according to directions, upon the appearance of the first symptoms, such as a Cough, a Cold, a Sore Throat, a Chest, or Side Pain. Taken thus early a cure is guaranteed.
Trial bottles free at W. C. Keplinger & Co's Drug Store.

—A grand convention of Hotel Men's Mutual Beneficial Association of the United States is being held this week in the Monongahela House, Pittsburg. On Tuesday a banquet was in progress at $7 per plate, Mr. C. G. McMillen, of the Albemarle, responding to the toast, "The Hotels of Pittsburg." Several very interesting excursions have been arranged for the entertainment of the visitors.

That Tired Feeling

Season feeling season is here again, and nearly every one feels weak, languid, and exhausted. The blood, laden with impurities which have been accumulating for months, moves sluggishly through the veins, the mind fails to think quickly, and the body is still slower to respond. Hood's Sarsaparilla is just what is needed. It is, in a peculsar sense, the ideal spring medicine. It purifies, vitalizes, and enriches the blood, makes the head clear, creates an appetite, overcomes that tired feeling, and imparts new strength and vigor to the whole body.

—Mr. Jacob M. Keppler, editor of the Forest county National Democrat, came to town the other day and took out a marriage license. The lady whom he will make happy is Charlotte Markle, of this county. This is a true evidence of the prosperity of Mr. Keppler and we wish him about double the usual proportion of bliss.

The Age Of Steam.

The toughest heart is soonest reached through the stomach. The man who ate a boiled crow was asked how he liked it, and answered: "I can worry it down, but don't hanker after it." The head of many a family where this paper is read, sits down daily to a meal of crow. Soggy potatoes, and vegetables with all the flavor boiled out of them, meats tough as leather, and with about as much sweetness. They worry it down, but hanker for something eatable. Dyspepsia, indigestion and ill-temper, are never seen in families that use the Model Steam Cooker. See illustration. It fits any stove, and will cook a whole meal for the family with the fire that would keep a teakettle boiling. It will save its cost in any family in three months in the saving of fuel, and food, to say nothing of health and temper preserved. The Model Cooker Co., 34 Park Row, New York, want agents in every county to help them sell these wonderful Cookers, and any one wishing permanent remunerative employment should write to them at once for full particulars.

—Mr. Samuel Ryan, on Tuesday morning, placed 3,000 trout in the spring. They were very tiny trout, scarcely an inch in length, but are expected to grow rapidly and will be an additional attraction.

Our Candidate for President

He will be nominated by the convention and will be elected by the people, because he will come the nearest to filling their ideal of a Chief Magistrate. Electric Bitters has been given the highest place because no other medicine has so well filled the the ideal of a perfect tonic and alterative. The people have indorsed Electric Bitters and rely upon this great remedy in all troubles of Liver, Stomach and Kidneys. For all Malarial Fevers and diseases caused by Malarial Poisons, Electric Bitters can not be too highly recommended. Also cures Headache and Constipation. Satisfaction guaranteed, or money refunded. Price 50c. and $1 at W. C. Keplinger & Co's Drug Store.

—Joseph McGuire, an experienced miner employed at Port Royal, Westmoreland county, was killed last Friday by a large lump of slate falling on him.

TEMPERANCE WINE.

No matter what may be said about the use of wines, it the adulteration and trash mixtures that does the mischief. Where pure wines are used we hear no complaint of inebriation. We never hear of intoxication from the use of Speer's Wine of New Jersey. This wine and also the Unfermented Grape juice is held in high estimation by the best doctors in this country, for the use of the sick.

—Frank Gage, of Huntingdon, son of Manager George F. Gage, of the Huntingdon and Broadtop railroad, died of pneumonia on Friday afternoon.

The Handsomest Lady in Bellefonte

Remarked to a friend the other day that she knew Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs was a superior remedy, as it stopped her cough instantly when others had no effect whatever. So to prove this and convince you of its merits, any druggist will give you a sample bottle free. Large size 50c and $1.

The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. How People of Limited Means Can Secure A HOME

No money given the Landlord will purchase a better home than the one in which you live. Should you die before the payments are complete, your heirs receive a deed at once. Why not secure a home or business property on this plan, enjoy all your earnings, and be confident that your family will not be turned into the street should you die?

Office on second floor of Humes' block, over the post office. A. C. MOORE, Gen Agt.

THE HOYLE MURDER

The Webster Mystery Believed to Be Solved.

ANOTHER ARREST MADE.

A New York Medical Student Who Is Suspected of Complicity in the Crime—The Story of the Awful Tragedy.

NEW YORK, May 7.—It is believed that the slayers of Lillie Hoyle, who was mysteriously murdered at Webster, Mass., in September last, have been discovered. On information received from Massachusetts detectives, Inspector Byrnes arrested Thomas B. McQuade, formerly of Webster, Mass., and more recently a student at the Vanderbilt Medical college, in this city. He is a youth of 21 years. In April last the Massachusetts authorities sent two detectives to this city to look for McQuade. He was traced to the medical college, which was at that time closed. His only address on the college records was: "Webster, Mass."

Saturday it was learned that he was living at the boarding house No. 471 West Fifty-seventh street, and it was there that he was arrested. Earlier in the day word was received from Worcester, Mass., that Dixon Cowie, the uncle of the murdered girl, who from the first had been under suspicion, had been arrested for complicity in the murder. The subsequent arrest of McQuade, following so closely, would seem to indicate that Cowie had "given away" McQuade's address and possibly made a confession. Inspector Byrnes said that he knew nothing of the case, and that he had asked the prisoner no questions; that he had simply telegraphed the Massachusetts authorities to send for their man. He added:

"It's my belief that McQuade killed the girl. He lived in Webster, close to Lillie Hoyle's house, and I understand that he and Coyle were intimate with the murdered girl and her sister Fannie. Lillie was about to get them into trouble and it was necessary that she should be put out of the way. I presume she was drugged and afterwards choked to death."

MERIDEN, Conn., May 6.—Dixon R. Cowie, who was arrest here charged with complicity in the murder of Lillie Hoyle, has always been suspected of the murder, although there never has been sufficient evidence against him to warrant his arrest, and the authorities are reticent regarding the developments that have led to his arrest now.

Lillie Hoyle's death is numbered among the strangest murder mysteries of recent years. At 10 o'clock on the night of Sept. 1 she was with her sister Alice in the little room they occupied over an ice cream saloon in their uncle's house. It was in the heart of the village, a bright moonlight night, and a number of people was still abroad in the streets. Dr. Frederick Brown was smoking his pipe on the front veranda opposite. Lillie Hoyle, hatless, and half prepared for bed, with only an old shawl thrown over her shoulders, left the room to be gone but for a moment. She disappeared utterly. Three weeks later her remains were found under a corn crib on the old Timothy Aldrich farm in the adjoining township of Oxford.

A post mortem examination revealed the fact that she had been in a delicate condition; that she had probably met death on the night she left home, and that the means of death were either strangulation, suffocation or the use of anæsthetics. Circumstances led to the belief that the murder had not been committed where the body was found, and that the perpetrator or perpetrators had ample time to prepare the body for convenient handling and removal and to select a hiding place for it.

The last person to see the murdered girl alive, so far as known, was her uncle, Dick Cowie, and to him suspicion attached from the first. There were many circumstances in connection with the case which led to the belief that if he were not the murderer he knew a great deal more about the affair than he had been persuaded to tell. Cowie is between 30 and 35 years of age, and occupied the upper part of the building in which the ice cream saloon where Lillie worked was situated. Lillie and her sister Alice rented apartments from him.

The night the girl disappeared the wife of Mr. Cowie was away on a visit. The second day after the girl was missed a Mrs. Wheeler, wife of one of Lillie's intimate friends, had a conversation with Cowie, in which he told her what purported to be a long conversation with the girl the night she went away. He said he met her on the stairs and watched her go out the back door and enter an outbuilding.

He said to Mrs. Wheeler he thought that, with the use of a chloroform bag, Lillie could have been taken from the outbuilding and carried away without creating any disturbance. Cowie afterward denied having talked with his niece on the night in question, and said the alleged conversation with Mrs. Wheeler was a fabrication. Cowie spent the evening of Lillie's disappearance about town in company with a peanut vender, who, in his wife's absence, he took home to sleep with him. The boy, whose name is Crumley, says he and Cowie reached home shortly after 10:30 o'clock and that very soon after he and Cowie had got into bed the latter said, "Do you hear that?" and listening, he heard some one exclaim, as if in remonstrance.

Cowie shortly after the murder was credited with telling other stories which he afterward denied.

The Brewery Trouble in New York.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A mass meeting of the Central Labor union was held in this city for the purpose of taking action regarding the state of affairs as they exist between the "bosses" and the locked out brewers. The following resolution was read and adopted:

Whereas, a gigantic conspiracy known as the "Beer pool" has locked out 5,000 wage earners because they were refused their rights as freemen.

Therefore, be it resolved that we denounce said conspiracy for its cruel and illegal conduct, and we call upon the public and organized labor to crush it out by refusing to drink beer made in every brewery connected with the pool.

John Battin, a laborer, convicted at Rochester, N. Y., of rioting during the labor troubles there last June, was sentenced to pay a fine of $365 or to serve 365 days in the penitentiary.

The body of John Atkins, who disappeared from Vandalia, Mich., last December, was found floating in the lake. Two negroes are in jail, suspected of his murder, and there are threats of lynching them.

George Hummel, a Cincinnati baker, shot himself Friday night. After a surgeon had dressed the wound a Newfoundland dog mounted guard over the wounded man, and it became necessary to kill him to nurse his master.

—John L. Sides, of Jersey Shore, who is well known here, had a stroke of paralysis while at Keller's Hotel, Lock Haven, on Thursday night. At latest accounts he was improving, though in a very dangerous condition.

—A stranger in Bellefonte this morning asked a lad to direct him to the First National Bank. "I will," said the lad, "for twenty-five cents." "Isn't that rather high?" asked the gentleman. "Not too high for a bank director," instantly answered the lad.

—"His wealth of ideas, his fine flow of language and his elegant diction are simply wonderful, while the sweet spirit of the man himself wins forever those who know him," said D. L. Hooker in the Syracuse (N Y.) Journal of Geo. W. Bain who will lecture in the Court House here on Thursday evening, May 10.

—The Lock Haven Democrats want Governor Curtin and Judge Orvis to come and address them on political subjects. They are discouraged with Democracy and are rapidly coming into the Republican ranks and we don't believe that even the Judge and the Governor have eloquence enough to stay the tide.

—That rain on Friday evening was a splendid one and just the kind to do a great deal of good. We hope the ministers, in the churches to-morrow, will publicly return thanks, for such blessings are being visited daily on an ungrateful people and we seldom hear even the ministers making acknowledgement of them.

—The Centre Hall Reporter makes the alarming discovery that Millheim was not founded until 1798. If this is so, we fear the celebration of that Centennial must be delayed ten years longer. People who are longing for a centennial at once may be consoled by the information that the first house in Potters Mills was erected just one hundred years ago.

—Hon. James P. Coburn of Aaronsburg, has been appointed a member of the commission which is to act under the law of June 14, 1887, providing for the selection of sites and the erection of State Hospitals for injured person, to be located within the bituminous and semi-bituminous coal regions of the State. There are six members of the commission, in all.

a man for groaning when he has Rheumatism or Neuralgia. The pain is simply awful. No torture in the ancient times was more painful than these twin diseases. But—oughtn't a man to be blamed if, having Rheumatism or Neuralgia, he wont use Ath-lo-pho-ros, when it has cured thousands who have suffered in the same way? It has cured hundreds after physicians have pronounced them incurable.

"The skill of five physicians could not cure me of Rheumatism which had settled in the hips, neck and shoulders. So intense was the pain that sleep was almost impossible. The first dose of Athlophoros gave me relief, and the third enabled me to sleep for four and a half hours without waking. I continued its use and am now well."

WHAT AILS YOU?

Do you feel dull, languid, low-spirited, lifeless, and indescribably miserable, both physically and mentally; experience a sense of fullness or bloating after eating, or of "goneness," or emptiness of stomach in the morning, tongue coated, bitter or bad taste in mouth, irregular appetite, dizziness, frequent headaches, blurred eyesight, "floating specks" before the eyes, nervous prostration or exhaustion, irritability of temper, hot flushes, alternating with chilly sensations, sharp, biting, transient pains here and there, cold feet, drowsiness after meals, wakefulness, or disturbed and unrefreshing sleep, constant, indescribable feeling of dread, or of impending calamity?

If you have all, or any considerable number of these symptoms, you are suffering from that most common of American maladies—Bilious Dyspepsia, or Torpid Liver, associated with Dyspepsia, or Indigestion. The more complicated your disease has become, the greater the number and diversity of symptoms. No matter what stage it has reached, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will subdue it, if taken according to directions for a reasonable length of time. If not cured, complications multiply and Consumption of the Lungs, Skin Diseases, Heart Disease, Rheumatism, Kidney Disease, or other grave maladies are quite liable to set in and, sooner or later, induce a fatal termination.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery acts powerfully upon the Liver, and through that great blood-purifying organ, cleanses the system of all blood-taints and impurities, from whatever cause arising. It is equally efficacious in acting upon the Kidneys, and other excretory organs, cleansing, strengthening, and healing their diseases. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it promotes digestion and nutrition, thereby building up both flesh and strength. In malarial districts, this wonderful medicine has gained great celebrity in curing Fever and Ague, Chills and Fever, Dumb Ague, and kindred diseases.

which is Scrofula of the Lungs, is arrested and cured by this remedy, if taken in the earlier stages of the disease. From its marvelous power over this terribly fatal disease, when first offering this now world-famed remedy to the public, Dr. Pierce thought seriously of calling it his "CONSUMPTION CURE," but abandoned that name as too restrictive for a medicine which, from its wonderful combination of tonic, or strengthening, alterative, or blood-cleansing, anti-bilious, pectoral, and nutritive properties, is unequaled, not only as a remedy for Consumption, but for all Chronic Diseases of the Liver, Blood, and Lungs.

HE COULDN'T STAY AWAY.

An Escaped Convict Voluntarily Returns to Sing Sing.

SING SING, N. Y., May 7.—A seedy looking man, about 36 years old, walked into the office of the prison about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon and asked for Warden Brush. The warden was away. He then told Principal Keeper Connaughton that he had come to give himself up.

He said his name was William Shepsey, and that in April, 1878, he was sentenced by Recorder Hackett to five years' imprisonment for grand larceny. He was then about 21 years old. While he was working in the stone yard at the prison, in September of the same year, in company with a convict named Wilson and one known as Yellow Lee, they jumped on a passing freight train and rode about three miles southward. Then they took to the woods and escaped.

Principal Keeper Connaughton did not know what to think of the story at first, although the records of the institution confirmed it. The question was as to identity. The man's appearance, of course, had changed very much. Finally the man pulled up his left sleeve, and showed a scar which he said he made in erasing a blue mark from his arm, an identification mark which had been noted on the prison register.

That settled the case pretty conclusively, and Principal Keeper Connaughton welcomed him back. The murderer gave no reason for his voluntary return. When pressed for one he said:

"I have nothing to say about that for the present."

He answered all other questions freely. He said he has been all over the country.

MYSTERIOUS ROBBERY.

A Package of Brown Paper Substituted for a Bundle Containing $41,000 Between New York and Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A discovery was made at the treasury department Saturday which, it is thought, points to a defalcation at the American Exchange National bank of New York. The Adams Express company, in making its usual deliveries of national bank notes forwarded for redemption, submitted a package from the bank named. It bore the usual label and seal, and purported to contain $41,000. Packages containing notes for redemption are usually made up in the most compact manner, but this particular one, while of the right size for the amount it purported to contain, did not seem to be closely packed, and yielded readily to hand pressure.

It was subsequently opened in the presence of officers of the express company, and found to contain nothing but brown paper. An examination of the sealed label also disclosed the fact that it had been neatly cut from its original place and pasted on the bogus package. The treasurer refused to receive the package, and gave notice to the bank accordingly. The impression at the department is that the bank put up the money for transmission to the department, but delayed forwarding it, and that while in its custody the package was abstracted and another put in its place, bearing all the marks and appearance of the original package.

Cashier Edward Burns was seen at his home in Brooklyn, and was very reticent in his remarks about the affair. In answer to the question what he knew about the robbery, he at first stated that he had heard nothing, afterwards admitted that his statement in this respect was a little "disingenuous," and that he had heard about it. When asked if the amount was $41,000, he said: "Not quite that, but very near it."

Then, in answer to other questions, he stated that these packages were sent to the express company by two bank messengers and were put up "by an official whose position in the bank he hardly knew what to call." The packages were stamped with the bank's seal, and had the value of the contents written upon the outside. The bank always took receipts for the packages, and the cashier admitted that a receipt had been received for this one. It was evident from further conversation that the cashier considered the express company "ordinarily" responsible for these packages. They were not always made up of the bank's own bills, but very often with those of other banks as well.

Loss of the Edward E. Webster.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 7.—A telegram received here from Capt. John Harris, of the schooner Edward E. Webster, says the vessel was lost in the vicinity of Cape Horn, and the crew carried to San Francisco. The Webster sailed from here Oct. 27 for Seattle, to engage in Alaska seal fishing, and put into Montevideo dismasted, from which place she sailed Jan. 19. She carried a large fishing outfit and other miscellaneous cargo.

Tornado in Illinois.

GALENA, Ills., May 7.—A severe wind storm passed over Elizabeth, leveling fences, outbuildings and other objects in its path. A frame house which was building was completely wrecked, and six men were thrown from the roof to the ground, but none were fatally injured. The storm came from the southwest, and was accompanied by rain and violent hail.

She Wants $25,000 Damages.

POUGHKEESIE, May 7.—A summons and complaint has been served upon Arthur De Wint, a prominent citizen of Fishkill Landing, in behalf of Marie G. Barenne, a school teacher in New York city, who sues De Wint for $25,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The parties became acquainted in New York city and were engaged to be married about the 1st of September last, the ceremony to take place before Christmas. About Christmas the plaintiff learned that the defendant was a married man and has a family. The defendant is one of the heirs of the De Wint estate in this county.

BOSTON, May 7.—The famous sloop yacht Fanita will hereafter hail from Boston. Harris Crittenden, assignee of A. S. Hatch & Co., among whose assets the Fanita was included, have accepted an offer received through Edward Burgess for the sloop. It is understood that the price is about $5,000. The Fanita is an extremely beamy centerboard. She was designed by Philip Ellsworth for J. G. Prague. Her most important victory was over the Ulida around Long Island. The Fanita was the smallest boat that ever attempted this race, but she beat the record by more than nine minutes.

He Swindled Ten Years Ago.

CINCINNATI, May 7.—A man calling himself Dr. Albert Le Grand, who had rented parlors for the healing of nervous diseases without the use of drugs, was recognized here by Louis Roth as Albert Geisman, who, ten years ago, obtained $10,000 worth of gloves from him upon false representation. He immediately had him arrested, and the man is now in jail unable to give $1,000 bail. Geisman is represented as having made much money by his medical practice. He had hired a theatre for a public healing exhibition.

BURNET--CURTIN WEDDING.

Consummated on Wednesday Afternoon in Magnificent Style.

THE CEREMONY GUESTS TOILETS AND OTHER DELIGHTFUL DETAILS

Nature smiled complacently, Wednesday afternoon, on the wedding of Miss Kate Wilson Curtin, youngest daughter of ex-Governor A. G. Curtin, and Mr. DeWitt Burnet, of Syracuse, N. Y., which had been looked forward to with so much interest and is now a subject of pleasing retrospect. It will remain a topic of interest among all our people a long time to come and memories of it will frequently enliven social conversation.

A half hour before the time appointed for the ceremony, 2 p. m., carriages rolled up to the stately mansion and the occupants, all in full dress, alighted. The curtains were drawn tightly and a flood of gaslight and candelabra illuminated the interior. There were a great many people from a distance, added to whom were the representatives of Bellefonte's society, their presence and elegant costumes rendering the spacious rooms a scene of enchanting beauty.

At 2 o'clock the company were all assembled. The Jules Neff orchestra occupied a recess south of the parlor. At the western end of this apartment and beneath a full length portait of the Czar of Russia were a mass of waving palm trees while in the alcoves were superb collections of roses and other natural flowers, contributing color and fragrance to the decorations.

The wedding party emerged from the room, crossed the broad hall and paused in front of the bank of foliage. They were met by Rev. George Elliott, Presbyterian minister at Unionville, who is related to Governor Curtin's family.

The bride was attired in a wedding gown of Oriental moire with point lace flounces, trimmed with myrtle and white lilacs. She wore no jewels. Her veil was of tulle fastened with myrtle. In her hand she carried a few roses and white lilacs. The bridesmaids were Miss Sage, of Ithaca; Miss Harris, of Bellefonte; Miss Townsend, of Syracuse; Miss Lewis, of Boston; Miss Elliot, of Unionville; and Miss Hoyt, of Philadelphia. Their dresses were of Mousseleine de soie with moire sashes. Their bouquets were loose bunches of La France roses and white lilacs.

The groom was Mr. Moses DeWitt Burnett, of Syracuse, New York, and the ushers were Mr. Oxnard, of Brooklyn; Mr. Horace White and Mr. Burnet Nash, of Syracuse; Mr. Alan Wilson, of Philadelphia; Mr. James Hamill and Mr. John I. Potter, of Bellefonte.

The ceremony was very pleasing and the usual expressions of congratulations followed. As soon as it was over opportunity was afforded to see who was present. Among the guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Burnet, from Syracuse; Mr. and Mrs. Sage and Miss Whitney, of Ithaca; Mrs. Breese, of Newport, Dr. and Mrs. Roland Curtin, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Lewis Perrine, of Trenton; Mrs. Wilson, Masters Hugh and Wayne McVeagh Wilson, Miss Monaghan and Mr. and Mrs. Mann, Philadelphia; Governor and Mrs. Beaver, of Harrisburg, and Judge Levi T. Hannum, of Trenton, who is a brilliant wit.

Mrs. Curtin, the mother of the bride, wore heavy black gros grain silk with thread lace flounces and diamond pendants; Mrs. Burnet, the mother of the groom, wore a black thread lace dress. Among the most striking costumes we will mention Mrs. Sage's dress of heavy white sicilienne with deep gold and white crystal flounces and bodice garniture. Her ornaments were pearls and rubies. Mrs. Beaver's costume was black net with silver thistles. Misses Anna and Caroline Valentine were attired in lovely costumes—Miss Anna's being a symphony of moss green, and red, her gown of satin and tulle, bodice cut a la Recamier with velvet shoulder knots most correctly shod with scarlet Louis Quaterze slippers and carrying a scarlet fan; Miss Caroline's, a pink tulle caught with primroses, gloves and shoes to match of tan colored suede. Mrs. W. W. Curtin wore a very handsome white Valenciennes lace dress, cut V back and front. Mrs. Perrine wore black satin en train, bodice decollette, solitaire diamond necklace and ear-rings. Miss Whitney captured all hearts in brown velvet and antique pearls. In this striking costume she reminded every one of Ada Rehan in some of her most pleasing and brilliant robes. Miss Monaghan wore a lavender silk draped with embroidered muslin and corsage bouquet of violets. Miss Lowry's gown was of light blue tulle trimmed with forget-me-nots, which was extremely becoming to her blonde type of beauty. Mrs. Pierpoint, of Altoona, and Miss Simpson, of Lock Haven, were most beautifully attired. The costumes of the Bellefonte ladies in attendance were equally rich and beautiful.

The wedding dinner was served by John S. Trower, caterer, 138 East Chelten Ave., Germantown, Phil'a. It was elaborate and elegant. The principal table ornaments were several stands of candelabra. Flowers festooned the dining room and were massed in profusion at all convenient places.

A pretty conceit was carried out in presenting to each guest, when departing, a handsome box containing a piece of the wedding cake.

The bride and groom went west on the 5 o'clock mail train. After an indefinite wedding journey they will locate in Syracuse, the home of the groom, who is a broker in that city.

The presents were numerous and costly and were greatly admired by all the guests. They included silver and glass and much attractive bibelot.

The bride is accomplished, pretty and very popular. She is especially accomplished as a musician. Though her father's long residence abroad and in Washington has attracted her and her mother away from their Bellefonte home most of the time and her friends here have seen very little of her, yet they will regret this final leave taking of the home of her girihood while they can congratulate the handsome and noble-looking young man who was so fortunate as to win her as his wife. It is pleasant to be assured that he is in every way worthy of the high honer.

A Babe Cremated.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

PHILIPSBURG, Pa., May 2.—Last night about 8 o'clock a house in South Philipsburg, occupied by Mrs. Kinder, a widow, took fire and burned to the ground and with it a 2½-year-old child. Mrs. Kinder had gone to a neighbor's for coal oil, leaving this child asleep in a bed-room down stairs and a 5-year old boy in charge of the house. She had not been away long until the little boy came running for his mother to tell her that the house was on fire, but by the time she reached the house it was all ablaze. She ran to the bed-room and hunted all around for the child, but could not find it, although it called "Mamma!"

This morning it was discovered that the child had been under the bed, having no doubt fallen out. Mrs. Kinder burned her hand and face considerably and is almost wild with grief over the sad ending of her child.

—On Wednesday, the 25th day of April, Leon Mitchell Coudriet died in in Frenchville, Clearfield county, of an affection of the heart. His age was 56 years, 11 months and 15 days. He was quite largely engaged in the lumber business and had just been on a business trip to Williamsport. Deceased was of French parentage, though he was born in the United States, when his parents were on their way to this county. After staying a while in this town, the family went to Clearfield county and there Leon Coudriet became quite wealthy. He was a member of the Roman Catholic church.

—The Postmaster General has completed arrangements with the Postmaster General of Canada establishing a uniform rate of postage of one cent per ounce on all merchandise, including grain, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, scions and grafts; and one cent per two ounces of printed matter in the mails exchanged between the two countries and now known as third class matter in the domestic mails of this country. This arrangement is now in effect and removes the objections to the recent postal convention with Canada, which went into effect March 1st.

—It is well for township supervisors to know that by a decision of the Supreme Court of this State a few days ago, they are held responsible for any damages to life and property by reason of allowing objects that are likely to frighten well-broken, road worthy horses, such as piles of lumber, etc., to litter the roads under their charge. The supervisors of a township in one of the Northeastern counties were sued for damages and had to pay for the horse and wagon, by a decision of the lower courts. They appealed but the Supreme Court confirmed the lower court's action.

—The green groceries are now becoming daily more attractive. New potatoes proclaim that the last year's tubers are numbered. Fresh rhubarb suggests wonderful possibilities in pie. Strawberries expose their scarlet lusciousness to the eye and there are visions of delightful feasts as they are served with cream and sugar or in shortcake. Onions are there also and have attractions for all who do not object to the odorous effects which their consumption entails. These contributions to the table give additional charm to this period of the year.

—One gentleman has been heard from who was elected as an alternate delegate to the Chicago convention and who seems to be indignant because he was so elected. This makes him a very rare sort of an individual. He is Dr. W. C. Doane, of Williamsport. He writes to his favorite paper complaining that he had no conferrees at the conference and don't seem to care to go to the convention anyway.

—On Monday the Baptist ministerial conference met in Unionville and was an interesting gathering. Rev. Mr Hayden, pastor of the Christian church in this place, was in attendance. The programme previously prepared was elaborate and complete, and as most of it was carried out the result was exceedingly successful. The programme has already been published in this paper.

DEATH OF THE AGED AND YOUNG.

Death of an Infant.

Friday, at 5 o'clock, a. m, Lily, the infant daughter of Mr and Mrs. J. A. Fiedler, editor of the Gazette, died of pneumonia, the result of a cold. The little one was only nine months old.

This is the second death in Mr. Fiedler's family since he has resided in this place. We sincerely sympathize with him and his wife in this second afflictive dispensation or providence. In the removal from them of this pure, innocent bud of promise their feelings must be those of the intensest anguish. They are bereft, and yet are not without hope—nay, there is that hope which amounts to certainty. The bud will open, blossom and flourish in the tender care of the Great Husbandman.

Death of Mrs. Lucas.

Mrs. Sarah H. Lucas, wife of Mr. James G. Lucas, of Snow Shoe, died at the residence of her son in-law, H. R. Pensyl, No. 1427 Eighth street, Altoona, Wednesday morning. She was 68 years of age. The following children survive her: Mary C. Pensyl, of Altoona; Mrs. M Degarno, Snow Shoe; Mrs. K. Shoup, Snow Shoe; Georgiana Frybarger, Topton; William Lucas, Penns Valley; John Lucas, Milesburg; Samuel Lucas, of Snow Shoe; Mrs. Abbie Consoll, Beech Creek, and Mrs. Frankie Miller, of Hublersburg.

Funeral services were held at the house at 7.45 o'clock Thursday evening. The remains were taken to Unionville on seashore express last Friday for interment.

About Eating.

Some one whose appetite for good things don't seem to be as great as that of other people whom we might mention gives this advice about eating:

Never tempt the appetite.

Think of this as you give your order for a meal and act accordingly. It should be coupled with that old rule: Never eat when you are not hungry. Were both of these observed we would hear very little about indigestion, flatulence, headaches and biliousness.

Ten suffer from eating too much where one suffers from not eating enough, and more people are made sick from an excess of food, of bad quality.

Whenever the system demands food, and the stomach is in condition to receive and dispose of it, you will be warned by a sense of hunger. You may then eat with safety, providing you do not eat too much, which you are not likely to do if you allow yourself to be governed by common sense.

There are exceptions to this rule, but they are so easily recognized that none need be led very far astray. Irritability of the stomach, from any course whatever, almost invariably creates a feeling of hunger. This feeling is abnormal, and any attempt to satisfy it will result in indigestion, followed by its long trains of discomforts and disagreeable sensations. A little forbearance and careful attention for a few days will remove the trouble, and possibly save you from a spell of sickness.

New Steam Guage.

George W. Rodgers, of Bellefonte, who is a natural genius and inventor, and who took out a patent in January last for a steam guage for boilers, had since made an improvement on it and another patent will be issued on the 12th of the present month. Mr. Rodgers is in the city to-day on his way home from Philadelphia, where he was in consultation with certain makers as to the manufacture of these guages, which will be done by Belfield. Mr. Rodgers has already received a number of orders from various works, among them being the Akron iron works in Ohio, and expects soon to receive a big order from Carnegie. The model was made in New Haven, Connecticut, and is a handsome and perfect piece of machinery.—Lock Haven Daily Democrat.

—A German doctor has lately been making investigations as to the relative size of men and woman's hearts. He announces that the masculine heart weighs more and is larger than that possessed by the fair sex. A heart, it would appear, grows most quickly during the first and second years of life and between the second and seventh years it doubles in size. Until after the fifteenth birthday the heart still grows a little. In childhood the male and female heart are the same size, but after manhood the masculine heart developes much more than the female and ends by being two square inches larger than the latter.

—The Lutheran sociable was held at the residence of Captain Amos Mullen on Thursday evening. About one hundred persons were present. The occasion throughout was in every way enjoyable and Mr. and Mrs. Mullen succeeded admirably in entertaining. The social features of these gatherings are of principal importance though they result also in adding to the exchequer of the church. The sociable on Thursday evening netted about $15.

—The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has a corps of engineers engaged in taking accurate levels of the elevations at various points along its lines for the purpose of establishing bench marks. These marks will indicate the elevation of the bench above the sea level. These bench marks will be cut in the stone bridges and other permanent fixtures along the line, and they will serve as sources of information for the people for all time to come.

Failed to Recover Damages.

The case of Marion Milliken vs. The Borough of Bellefonte attracted more than the usual interest in court this week. It was for alleged damages to property by reason of the change in grade of the pavement in front of the property, the change being necessary because the pavement in front of Major Wm. F. Reynolds' property was laid according to the new grade. The change in the pavement, terrace, etc., involved considerable expense.

John G. Love, Esq., appeared for the borough and Wesley Gephart represented the plaintiff. Both made eloquent and ingenious arguments.

The court gave the law in reference to the subject. He said that it was right for the pavement to be laid according to the original grade of the land. That the builder must level such inaccuracies as happen to be in front of his own property. A change in elevating or lowering the land in front of his premises is as much of a change according to the act of assembly as a change of inclination. The rule of damage, however, requires that it be based on the extent to which the property is damaged in actual value.

The jury, after being out a short time, decided not to award any damages.

Making Flour in the Northwest.

These figures will show how extensively flour is being made at present in Minneapolis, Minn. The account was written on Wednesday of this week as follows: "The mills again outdid themselves last week, making the highest amount of flour ever produced in a single week. The total output was 181,800 barrels, averaging 30,300 barrels daily, against 178,200 barrels the week before and 120,500 barrels for the corresponding time in 1887. Two mills with a combined capacity of 1,000 barrels were idle when this run was made. Somewhat lighter work will doubtless be shown this week, as the mills representing a daily product of 1,500 barrels were shut down Saturday, and though one of them may be started to-morow or next day, the temporary loss of the output will be apparent, continued to run strong, but there is some talk about having to slacken up if there is not an early improvement in the flour trade. Millers claim that wheat is now so high as to almost prohibit milling, and that either flour must go up or wheat down, else they will have to stop grinding. The market is extremely dull and very little flour is being."

—Three days ago, while plowing in a field, John Story, of Dunbar, Pa., unearthed a button covered with rust and of immense size. Thinking that he had turned up a relic of revolutionary days, he placed the button in acids, and when the rust had been eaten away it was found that it was indeed a relic, and he has placed a price of $10,000 on his find. The button is about an inch and a half in diameter, made of copper, and has the initials of George Washington, "G. W.", within a circle in the center, bounded on the outside in a large circle with the words, "Long live the President." Outside of this last circle or ring, a complete chain of thirteen original States with the first letter of each State inclosed in one of the thirteen links. The button is at present in the possession of William Harrington, of Dunbar.

—We believe there is more building in progress on East Bishop street than in any other part of the town. Charles Crider, the inspector of cars at the depot, is building a new house out there which will be comfortable and pretty. Mr. McCumpsey is building a very pretty house on the same side of that thoroughfare. Mr. Rawle is erecting what looks like a double house on the south side. Several other houses are in progress. There is now quite a row of pretty dwellings beyond the new school house on the same side of the street, and we notice one or two houses way beyond the Catholic cemetery.

—The reason there are so many insurance men in Bellefonte at present is apparent. It is because of the truly alarming condition of the pavements and sidewalks. It is dangerous to life and limb to walk from one end of town to the other, and he who has no policy is unfortunate.

TOWN TOPICS.

Subjects That Were Discussed In the Council.

IMPORTANT BOROUGH IMPROVEMENTS BEING MADE AND MORE REQUIRED.

Half-past seven o'clock is late enough for the meeting of borough council, but at that hour scarcely one of the members was present. They came in slowly and devoted the best part of an hour in signing a multitude of bills, so the evening was well advanced when the reading of the minutes was called for, with all the members present except Messrs. Brouse and Brown.

MR. FORTNEY TALKS.

There were a half dozen citizens present. Mr. Fortney, the progressive and energetic President of the School Board, was the first to make a speech. It was, of course, in the interest of the school property, in behalf of which he has frequently interceded the council with slight results. But Mr. Fortney and all the other members of the Bellefonte school board can point with pride to the excellent work in school improvements they have accomplished during the past year. The beautiful new school property stands as a monument to the wisdom of Mr. Fortney and his capable associates, some of whom, we regret to say, are about to retire from the Board.

He said it was very necessary for Logan street to be opened and a boardwalk laid there for the easier access of the children to the school. While important improvements are being made on Linn street let the council not forget that there are other streets in the town. It was a shame the way the children had to trudge through the mud in the Spring. When the crossing is put down in front of the school house he would advise that it be from six to eight feet wide.

Sylvester Ray, Esq., seconded the request to open Logan street, because he has property interests in that vicinity.

IS IT A NUISANCE?

Mr. Richard McCafferty is now engaged in erecting a house on Spring street for Mr. John Powers, and finds that a serious nuisance exists on neighboring property. He asked that it be abated before he proceeds further. The nuisance committee was asked to give the matter their careful and considerate attention.

Water is greatly needed on East High street. There are seven properties there to be supplied. Among the names on the petition were J. D. Shugert, J. P. Harris, E. C. Humes and Daniel Garman Ross Williams, Mr. Everhert and other citizens reside there. Referred to Water committee.

EAST CURTIN STREET WANTS RAIN.

The Street committee reported. They have made repairs on the street leading to the poor house; also on Reynolds avenue. A crossing has been put in on West Curtin street. The committee had examined East Curtin street. It is so long since that street has been looked at by a real live Street committee that it blushed beneath the strong and concentrated gaze. So the committee concludes that nothing can be done to the street until it is drenched with water and revives. Hence, the ministers in all the churches are requested to intercede for rain so that Curtin street can be changed from a rural lane to a borough street. The usual report of "progress" was made in regard to the vetoed booth ordinance and the proposed market ordinance. Mr. Stover believes that the work is not proceeding satisfactorily and desires new arrangements made to accelerate it. Meanwhile, pending the Market ordinance, the Street commissioner is instructed to collect the same fees as in previous years.

GREAT BODIES MOVE SLOWLY.

A request for extension of water along West High street was referred to the Water committee; also the repairs to the fountain.

There is so much red tape and circumlocution about the process of compelling property holders to repair pavements that Mr. Stover became quite indignant at it and asked for a simpler method. At present, however, process must be in the old way. The proper remedy is to change the ordinance.

The Water committee has also been investing money, which may be seen in extensive but necessary repairs to the water works, including the old boiler. The laying of the water pipe on Linn street will be completed very soon.

The Market committee made its first report in effect that two markets had been held and the fees collected in the old way.

Some one upon jail hill had complained of the existence of a nuisance (one of the portable kind) in that vicinity. If it is as described the Nuisance committee should see that it does not exist another day.

The lease for the stable on Cherry alley which is to be rented from C. Schrock for a period, not being properly executed, was referred back for revision.

One of the concluding motions of this important meeting of council was that 650 feet of 3-inch pipe be laid out South Spring street to supply water to the dozen or more families who reside in that vicinity.

Mr. Potter again called attention to the desirability of having the outlying portions of the borough properly laid out into streets so that persons constructing fences may be governed as to location.

In the Churches on Sunday.

Everybody seemed to go to church on Sunday, and the services were perhaps above the average in interest. In the Reformed church a reverend gentleman who has been a missionary in Japan preached the sermons, which were of course missionary in their character. He is Rev. Mr. Gring and he is now recuperating his health after many years in that country. He was listened to, both morning and evening, by large and interested congregations.

Rev. Mr. McCord, of Altoona, was kind enough to come and fill Rev. Dr. Monroe's pulpit. The reverend gentleman is not only an able expounder of Bible truths, but he is also genial, agreeable and good looking. He was listened to by those large congregations for for which the church is noted. Commodious as the auditorium of the church is, it is crowded even on ordinary occasions, and, at the present rate of the congregation's growth, a more spacious church edifice will soon be required.

The music well rendered, the services impressive, the sermons plain and direct and congregations entering heartily into the spirit of the worship were characteristics of the day in the Episcopal church. The sermon in the morning was on that verse from St. James which defines pure religion. It is the spirit to show forth the fruits of our Christian service. To keep unspotted from the world is even more difficult.

The hall in which the Christian congregation worship is quite churchly. Rev. Mr. Hayden, the pastor, preaches sermons which are practical and logical. He speaks entirely without notes. His evening subject was the "The Apostles' Creed." The particular part of the Scripture from which he drew his text was Christ's question to Peter—"Whom say ye that I am?" and Peter's reply to the question. He spoke of the necessity for a creed in any organized society, and illustrated by the political parties and their platforms. The church in which he is a minister has a creed. It is the one which the Apostles formulated and afterwards preached—not one of man's device. He talked for a short time in this logical and forcible manner and promised to continue the same subject next Sunday evening under the title, "The Creed of Christianity."

The sermon of Rev. Wm. Laurie, D. D., in the Presbyterian church, in the morning, was a studied and careful effort, even excelling his usual excellent discourses. A notable feature of the music in the morning was the rendering of a vocal duet while the collection was being lifted, by Messrs. E. M. Blanchard and Robert Voris. It was entitled "The Prayer of the Wanderer," and their magnificent voices harmonized with splendid effect, bringing home to each heart the fine sentiment of the composition, in a manner more impressible than would be possible with spoken words. In the evening, also, there was a beautiful voluntary in which Mr. Blanchard's voice was heard in a solo.

Mr. Swalley in Erie.

We are glad to learn that Mr. Allan Swalley, secretary of the Y. M. C. A., of this place, is recovering his health. On Saturday evening when he reached his home in Erie, members of the Young Men's Debating Club and their friends called on him at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Swalley. Those present, says the Erie Dispatch, were royally entertained and the time passed only too rapidly, even though in the hands of a beautiful gold watch, a birthday gift from Allan's parents. The young gentlemen first indulged in singing and later recitations were enjoyed. After choice refreshments were served, toasts were called for, and the happy responses added much to the evening's pleasure. The programme was entirely impromptu and in consequence an informal expression of the real feelings of friends reunited.

EIGHT PERSONS KILLED.

THE APPALLING ACCIDENT NEAR MOUNT CARMEL ON SATURDAY NIGHT.

The regular dispatches to this paper, on Monday, failed to contain an account of the accident on the railroad and the explosion of powder which occurred near Mount Carmel on Saturday night. Therefore, we will publish the facts briefly.

Though freight No. 67, bound for Williamsport, on the Philadelphia and Reading line, filled up at Locust Summit at 10 o'clock. Westwardly there is a heavy grade and the train soon acquired a speed of 30 miles per hour. At the foot of the incline there is a short flat and at this point the coupling between the third and fourth cars broke. The first section ran half a mile before the fact that the train had parted was learned by Conductor Ziegenfose.

Engineer Robert Gallagher whistled down brakes and had about brought the first section to a standstill when the second section rushed down upon it. The third car contained Dupont powder, Dualin caps, glycerine and other explosives, consigned to D. W. Hold, Newberry Junction. A moment after the collision these exploded and sent death and destruction in every direction.

At the scene of the accident the railroad runs along the mountain side, one hundred feet above the level of Locust Gap creek. Running parallel with the stream there are two rows of houses owned by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company and occupied by the company's miners. The force of the explosion destroyed nearly every car making up the train, and the heavy timbers and large pieces of iron fell with crushing effect upon the dwellings below, cutting through the roof, wounding the inmates and overturning stones. Midway between the railroad and the first row on the steep incline stood a little cottage, in which John Quinn and his family of four children resided. This was reduced to ruins and ignited by the cooking stove, which scattered its burning coals among the ruins. The father was caught under the stove, and, despite heroic efforts to rescue him, was burned to a blackened mass. His two little girls shared a similar fate. Aided by George Gwinne, a brakeman, the other members of the family were rescued, though seriously burned. Next the flames spread rapidly to the adjoining row of eight houses. In the fourth house the mother, Mrs. Kerwick, was very ill. She was rescued, but five children perished in the flames. In all seventeen dwelling were destroyed. Twelve cars were blown to atoms. The shock of the explosion extended to Locust Gap and to Mount Carmel, where French plate glass store windows were shattered. The windows in the Roman Catholic church were shattered. None of the train hands were injured, although the engineer of the locomotive was stunned and another man was blown a considerable distance away. In all more than thirty persons were injured.

The First Game of Base Ball.

While Williamsport and Lock Haven are perspiring in their vain efforts to organize base ball nines, Bellefonte has them right at hand, and on Saturday afternoon had a lively game, the Academy and High School teams being the players. Academy went first to the bat, the scores resulting as follows:

Total	27	18

The game lasted two hours and some of the players distinguished themselves by fine plays, Woodcock, while pitching for the High School, struck out ten men. He was relieved by Bayard in the sixth inning, who struck out two. Valentine did remarkingly good work behind the bat, preventing many passed balls and covering a great deal of ground. Laurie struck out three men. Noll, Woodcock and Graham used the bat with good effect and J. Hughes and Harris made one especially fine double play.

Umpire Lawrence Fees gave general satisfaction.

OWL.

—All good work is costly work. He who wants to do good work must be willing to do hard work, and to put himself into his work without regard to its cost of time and strength. Even so simple a matter as appearing cheerful before others, or as showing considerateness of others, costs many a struggle with one's self, and many an act of self-denial. It is of no use for one to say that it is not his nature to be cheerful and kindly. The truth in his case, is, that he is not willing to be at the cost of making himself cheerful and kindly. We could have a great many more good things than we have and we could do a great many more good things than we do, if only we were willing to be at the cost of such having and doing.

Official Order for Memorial Day.

It is customary to issue a formal order for Memorial day and the following which proceeds from the State Department of the G. A. R. was just been handed to us by ex-Dep't Commander Austin Curtin:

GENERAL ORDERS. No. 7.
HEADQUARTERS DEPARTMENT OF PENNSYLVANIA, GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC, N. E. COR. 10TH AND CHESTNUT STS.
PHILADELPHIA, May 4th, 1888.

I. Time's ceaseless march brings us again to Memorial Day, and bids us make due preparation for its fitting observance. Twenty years have joined the irrevocable past since our lamented comrade, John A. Logan, then Commander in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, suggested that the day be consecrated to the memory of the departed soldiers of the Union. The beautiful and appropriate ceremonies then inaugurated have become year after year, more impressed upon the loyal hearts of the people, and with a reverent gratitude for the inestimable results—national unity and honor—all rejoice to observe and participate in the patriotic duties incident to the occasion. As members of the Grand Army, we should appreciate the fact that the duties of the day are imposed upon us by the principles of our association, and that in no other manner can we more fittingly and effectively "perpetuate the memory and history of our heroic dead" than by relinquishing our usual avocations for a time, and lay our annual tribute upon the graves of our departed comrades. We should remember the sacredness of the duty thus devolving upon us, and approach its discharge in a becoming manner. Let our conduct be such as to bring no reproach upon our loved organization but endeavor to win respect and admiration, and make its observance a work of love, and a duty for all time to come. Let us, therefore, on Memorial Day, repair to the last resting places of our patriotic dead, carrying with them and the flag they helped to save from dishonor, "garland the passionless mounds above them," and thus teach by our example that devotion to country and flag is worthy of imperishable remembrance.

II. It is recommended that each Post attend Divine worship on the Sabbath preceding Memorial Day, and join in thanksgiving to God for continued peace, prosperity and happiness.

BY COMMAND OF Department Commander
FRANK J. MAGEE.

THOMAS J. STEWART,
Asst. Adjutant General.

Entertainment and Camp-fire.

Howard's lively Post of G. A. R. are making extensive preparations for a royal and interesting entertainment and camp-fire in Lucas' new hall, on Friday evening June 15, 1888. The entertainment will consist of comicalities, music, both vocal and instrumental, stereoptican views of battles, etc. The celebrated comic singer, Comrade W. T. Cannon, of Tyrone, will be on hand to add zest to the occasion. The camp-fire will consist of rails placed on it by comrades and kept burning by especially invited friends from abroad. There will also be a contest for two chairs on the occasion. It promises to be one of the best entertainments ever given in the Bald Eagle Valley. Everyboy and their wives and sweethearts are invited.

—The time for the commencement exercises of the High School will be Thursday, the 24th instant. There are thirteen graduates who will deliver their productions—orations by the young gentlemen and essays by the young ladies.
